[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 11.—The Milwaukee Journal says: "Senator Stephenson has given up the idea of having the republican state platform convention endorse his candidacy for the United States senate. This decision is said to have been brought about by a feeling on 'Uncle Ike's' part that such an endorsement might not carry in the convention and if it did not carry it would hurt him in many things that might develop in the state legislature in his election to the senate."
The announcement of the candidacy of E. A. Edmonds, manager of the Stephenson campaign, as chairman of the republican state central committee, was the absorbing topic in the political circles today. Mr. Edmonds' candidacy is said to have resulted from a conference of the Stephenson people held late yesterday afternoon. It is taken that "Uncle Ike" feels he cannot trust W. D. Connors so far as the state chairmanship is concerned. The afternoon conference yesterday caused "Uncle Ike" to bring out Mr. Edmonds as a candidate to succeed W. D. Connors.
Mr. Connors is making a vigorous campaign for re-election. He is also said to be working for the defeat of the candidates for the senate and assembly who voted against him two years ago. Just how many of the legislators Mr. Connors controls is a mystery that is vexing the Stephenson people. It is also feared by "Uncle Ike" that if Mr. Connors is again state chairman he might take advantage of the opportunity to promote his own chance for the United States senatorship, if such a condition should arise.
What part Senator La Follette is playing in the selection of the state chairman is not known. Some of his friends say that he is holding the key to the situation. However, there is some doubt as to how many progressives there are among the nominees to the state assembly, though there is no doubt that this element is in the majority in the senate.

BEEDLE DECIDES NOT TO RUN AS AN INDEPENDENT

Wiser Councils Prevail with Man Who Was Defeated in Candidacy for Insurance Commissioner.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 11.—George E. Beedle, who was defeated for nomination as commissioner of insurance on the republican ticket, by J. E. Abbott of Madison, by a margin of 226 votes, has practically abandoned the idea of running as an independent candidate. While Mr. Beedle was evidently caught napping, believing that there was no danger of defeat at the primaries, it is not clear how he could do other than submit political suicide if he ran independent. His friends are divided upon the subject. Some declare that he ought not to try any means to regulate the primary election law which he himself helped to frame, because that course would wipe him off the political map. Some friends profess to believe that Mr. Beedle would be elected, but these are few and far between.

I hope you make this democratic territory spread throughout the state."

The suit was filed one year ago in August, 1907. UNVEILED MONUMENT TO GENERAL MACOMB

Daughters of 1812 Honor Memory of Hero of Battle of Plattsburgh.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Detroit, Mich., Sept. 11.—The Michigan society of the United States Daughters of 1812 today celebrated the ninety-fourth anniversary of the winning of the battle of Plattsburgh unveiling a monument to General Alexander Macomb, the hero of the engagement. General Macomb was a native of Detroit, the head of the Fifth military department, with headquarters in this city, and was subsequently commander-in-chief of the armies of the United States.
The monument has been placed in a conspicuous location on Washington boulevard. It consists of a bronze statue of the general, executed by Adolph A. Weinman of New York, erected on a handsome base of granite. Decorating the base are three chieftains that were used in the war of 1812.
An interesting programme was carried out at the unveiling. Father Ernest Van Dyke delivered the invocation and the oration was by Congressman Edwin Thompson. Other speakers were Mayor Denby, Mrs. William Gerry Shide, national president of the United States Daughters of 1812, and Mrs. Bertram C. Whitney, president of the Michigan society. The statue was unveiled by Mrs. Frank Wheaton, president of the Colorado society. The ceremonies concluded with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and salute fired by the seventh United States infantry.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND IS SEVENTY YEARS OLD TODAY

Countless Messages Of Congratulation Received By Venerable Churchman.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 11.—Archbishop John Ireland, who, with the single exception of Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, is the best known member of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in America, was seventy years old today. The wide popularity that he enjoys, and which is not confined by any means to the members of his church, was evidenced by the countless messages of congratulation received at the archiepiscopal residence during the past few days. The greetings came from every part of the United States, included among the senders were prelates and priests of the church, United States senators and others eminent in public life, presidents of railroads and millionaires, merchants and manufacturers, heads of universities and colleges and, in fact, persons in all walks of life, from the highest to the most humble. From Rome was carried the congratulations of the Pope, together with other messages of felicitation from members of the Sacred college and other leaders of the church among whom his Grace of St. Paul enjoys the warmest esteem and personal friendship.

Archbishop Ireland both mentally and physically appears to be in the prime of life. His hair has long been gray, but there are furrows in his forehead, but the casual observer would not guess his age at more than sixty. He attributes his good health largely to his regular habits. His life is as simple and unostentatious as is possible to make it. When at home he arises every morning at 5 o'clock, and the two hours from that time until 7 he employs in the devotions common to his church. At half past 7 he breakfasts with the members of his household. The breakfast hour over he retires to his study, runs over the morning papers, summons his secretary, and begins the labors of the day. No matter relating to the charitable, religious, educational or other activities of his church is too trivial to receive his personal attention. His capacity for work is wonderful, and his enthusiasm unflagging. The hours from 2 to 4 in the afternoon he usually spends in his office at the cathedral. At 5 o'clock the prelate returns to his home and to his devotions. The evening meal is served shortly after 6, and the hours thereafter till 9 are given over to study and work of other character. He retires about 10 o'clock each night and sleeps almost uniformly seven hours.

The province of St. Paul, over which Archbishop Ireland rules, embraces the states of Minnesota and the Dakota. It is thirty-three years since he was consecrated as conductor to Bishop Grace of St. Paul. Thirteen years previously he had begun his career as a churchman with his ordination to the priesthood. Archbishop Ireland first came into prominence through his strong work in the interest of temperance. After several years of incessant work in his church in Minnesota and the organization of many total abstinence societies he branched out in his work and delivered lectures in the principal cities of America, England and Ireland.
In recent years the Archbishop has given much attention to charity and the promotion of enterprises looking to the amelioration of the condition of the very poor. His work has not been confined to his church alone. In many public movements, some of them local and many of them national in their scope, he has taken active part. He does not share the belief of some that a churchman should concern himself only with the affairs of the church. On occasions, when he believed it to be for the good of the people at large, the Archbishop has not hesitated to take an active part in politics. The promotion of a better understanding between capital and labor is a subject in which he has always been deeply interested. He has taken an active interest in the work of the national Civic federation and other bodies having for their aim the promotion of the general welfare.

The Archbishop is looked upon as a son of Minnesota, though in point of fact it is in Ireland that he first saw the light of day. When he was a babe in arms his parents removed to this city, which has been his home ever since. His education was received in the cathedral school here. Subsequently he spent some eight or ten years in theological study in France, returning to St. Paul in 1861 and being ordained to the priesthood shortly afterward. During the civil war he served as chaplain of the Fifth Minnesota regiment. He has visited some many times since he became a bishop in 1875 and it is an open secret in the church that his advice was sought frequently by the late Pope Leo XIII., whenever the affairs of the church in America came up for discussion at the Vatican. The name of Archbishop Ireland has been mentioned periodically in connection with a cardinalate, but so far as is known he has never put forth the slightest effort to secure the red hat. To his intimates he has often said that he would be well satisfied to remain in his present position to the end of his days.

LONE STAR STATE WILL HONOR HOUSTON'S MEMORY

Costly Monument Is To Be Erected To General
Samuel Houston By State Of Texas.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Austin, Texas, Sept. 11.—The memory of Gen. Sam Houston soon is to be perpetuated by a monument over his grave at Huntsville. The Texas legislature last year appropriated $10,000 to erect the monument and entrusted the execution of its will to the Governor. Progress in the plans has been facilitated by several recent conferences of those interested in the project, and it is expected that little delay will attend further preparations. Pompey Copeland, the San Antonio sculptor, has been selected to design the monument.
Sam Houston was the father of the state of Texas. From the time that he was elected general in 1833, until he accomplished the annexation of the state, in 1845, he was the guiding spirit of its destinies, and piloted it through great storm and stress to the safe harbor of union with the United States.
Houston's career before he came to Texas had been exciting and picturesque. In the war of 1812 his bravery attracted the attention of General Andrew Jackson, who always admired Houston's remarkable powers.
In Tennessee Houston was district attorney, congressman and governor in the 20s, and when he left that state he went to the Cherokee tribe of Indians, by whose chief he had been adopted in his youth. For some years he wore the Indian garb, and visited President Jackson in that costume just before he came to Texas. His career in this state began as a member of a constitutional convention in 1833. Soon afterward he was appointed general of Texas, and then commander-in-chief of the army. Early in 1836 he was a member of the Texas convention that passed a declaration of independence, and was appointed commander-in-chief of the republic's army.
Santa Anna, with a Mexican force, entered Texas, and in a few days the Alamo fort surrendered, and the Texans in it, numbering nearly 200, and including Davy Crockett, Col. Bowie and other famous fighters, were slaughtered in cold blood.
Thenceforth the battle cry of the forces that Houston led was "Remember the Alamo," and before the end of April Houston had scored a complete victory over the Mexicans and Santa Anna was captured.
Houston began his agitation for union with the United States as early as 1838, when he left the presidency, and persisted in it after his election to the chief magistracy again in 1841, employing great diplomatic art to overcome opposition.

TAFT MAY SPEAK AT THE FARMERS' NAT'L CONGRESS

Which Is To Be Held In Madison September
24-30—Bryan Has Already Accepted Invitation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Sept. 11.—The executive committee of the Farmers' National Congress, which will meet in Madison Sept. 24-30, is making an effort to secure the presence of W. L. Taft, republican presidential candidate, and it is said that much probability exists that the committee's invitation will be accepted. Were the plan to prove successful, Madison would entertain both the democratic and republican nominees during the same week, for Mr. Bryan has already accepted an invitation and will speak in Madison on Sept. 20. It is said that the republican national committee disapproved the fact of Bryan's addressing the Farmers' Congress, and desired to have the republican nominee also address the agriculturists, and that as a result the Madison committee extended the invitation.
To Enjoy Launch Trip: Miss Myrtle Curtis is to entertain a company of friends on a launch trip up-river, this evening.

COMMITTEEMEN CHOSEN SEPT. 1

VOTERS THROUGHOUT COUNTY NAMED MEN TO BE

IN CHARGE OF PRECINCTS

Weakness of Primary Law Shown in Provisions Regarding County Committee.

At the September primary each voter may write in the space left on his ticket for that purpose the names of not to exceed three qualified electors of the precinct for his party precinct committee. The three having the highest number of votes shall constitute such committee, and, except in the case of the first class, the one having the largest vote shall be chairman. The city committee of each political party consists of the chairman of the precinct committee in each city, and it is the duty of the chairman of each party county committee to call, within ten days after the September primary, at a meeting of the members of the city committee at a place to be designated by him.

The membership of the county committee is made up in this county of the chairman from each election precinct elected at the September primary. The primary law also provides that the chairman of the county committee shall within five days after said primary call a meeting of said county committee, by giving each member thereof a notice in writing, at least five days prior to the holding of such meeting.

In this county the giving of such notice within five days is practically impossible. The board of canvassers meets and canvasses the returns at ten o'clock on the Friday following the primary, and it takes at least four or five days to canvass the vote and make the necessary count. It thus becomes practically impossible to canvass the vote and notify all the members of the precinct committees within five days after the primary.

Republican County Committee

The members of the Republican county committee as shown by the canvass are Peter Anson, Avon; David Throne, Beloit; Robert More, Bradford; O. C. Lang, Center; A. W. Sheppard, Clinton; Grant Chamberlain, Fulton; J. E. Gleason, La Prairie; C. A. Hunt, Lima; R. B. Acheson, Magnolia; A. D. Frick, Milton; R. C. Hanson, Newark; E. G. Belmer, 4th ward, Beloit; Stewart Mellick, 5th ward, Beloit; H. H. Knapp, City of Edgerton; A. F. Fellows, City of Evansville; W. F. Carle, 1st ward, Janesville; Fred Clemmons, 2d ward, Janesville; W. H. Greenman, 3d ward, Janesville; J. A. Sutherland, 5th ward, Janesville; M. Kellogg, Milton. These men are the chairmen of the various precinct committees and are, as such, members of the county committee.

Democratic Committee

The Democratic county committee is composed of the following: John Henry, Avon; H. B. Tiche, Clinton; C. B. Palmer, Lima; F. B. Morris, Milton; E. Stansbury, Porter; E. A. Kane, Plymouth; J. P. Ward, Spring Valley; Charles Falters, Turtle; W. M. Gillin, Union; A. W. Miller, Clinton; J. C. Goodrich, Milton; Dr. E. M. Carey, 1st ward, Beloit; Matthew Lathrop, 1st precinct, 2d ward, Beloit; F. H. Frost, 2d precinct, 2d ward, Beloit; John Burns, 5th ward, Beloit; Thomas Edgington, Edgerton; A. Foxson, Evansville; J. J. Cunningham, 5th ward, Janesville; Thomas Selgel, 4th ward, Janesville; G. W. Croft, 5th ward, Janesville.

Social democrats elected precinct committees only in the town of Avon and the 5th ward of Beloit and the prohibitionists elected committees in Avon, the first precinct of Beloit, and the city of Evansville.

City Committees

The Republican city committee is L. W. Thompson, 4th ward; W. F. Carle, 1st ward; Fred Clemmons, 2d ward; W. H. Greenman, 3d ward; and J. A. Sutherland, 5th ward. The Democratic committee is J. J. Cunningham, 5th ward; Thomas Selgel, 4th ward; G. W. Croft, 5th ward.

LATEST PHOTOGRAPH OF SENATOR JOSEPH D. FORAKER.

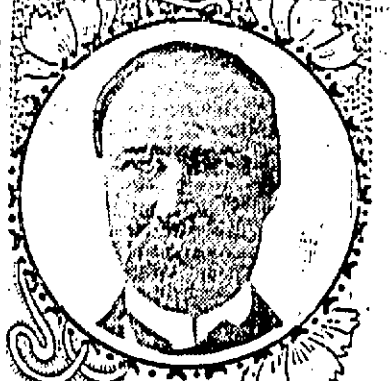

(Copyright by J. H. Schmidt.) Two events last week occurred which produced great joy in the Republican campaign. The first was when Vermont Senator Republican by a plurality greater than 25,000 and the second was when Taft and Foraker met and the political breach in Ohio was healed. If there is one thing that has been troubling Illinois more than another it has been the situation in Ohio. He realized Foraker's strength and wished to have it on his side. The motto problem was easily solved through the diplomacy of the presidential nominee himself. Both men were to speak at Toledo during the U. S. A. H. parade, and both met the occasion in a diplomatic manner, which added to the strength of each. Taft, in his goodnatured, frank manner, complimented the Ohio senator on his work and expressed thanks publicly for the work Foraker had done for him in the past. Senator Foraker in reply stated that he was out to back Judge Taft for the presidency this year.

HIS HOME AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Charles Warren Fairbanks' summer home in Indiana his winter home when he is away from Washington. It is his Indianapolis residence. The vice-president does not maintain a country place as his various country estates might or might not permit, and he spends most of the summer between his modest home and his modest law office in one of the old office buildings of the city.

The home is a two-story frame structure, built many years ago, and quite unpretentious as to design—of about the same sort, in fact, as that of his neighbor, John Worth Kern, who rather expects to succeed him as vice-president. The grounds about the house do most to make the place attractive. The yard is of unusual width and depth, with many shrubs and shrubbery about the beautiful lawn. The Fairbanks family, when at home, spend a great part of the time on the lawn, beneath the trees. There was a time when Meridian street, on which the home fronts, was the one exclusive street of Indianapolis, but now that portion in which the property lies seems quiet and retired, while wealth and society are going farther north.

KRELL'S ORCHESTRA, FOR THANKSGIVING?

Devotees of Terpsichore Are Endeavoring to Secure a Duo-
Date of Chicago Orchestra.

Remembering the music that took society by storm last winter, certain gentlemen who are numbered among the local devotees of the dance are passing a paper and asking signatures for a projected big subscription dance to be given here on the evening of Thanksgiving Day. They propose to secure Krell's Chicago orchestra which played for the Holmes-Budget party some nine months ago.

Fines for Bachelors.

Suffragette—Fines and penalties were imposed on bachelors in Greece and Rome. At certain festivals in Sparta it was the custom for women to drag old bachelors around the altar. The victims were not handled gently. In England as late as 1785 higher taxes were imposed on the servants of bachelors than on those of other people.

Reassuring.

A lady on one of the ocean liners who seemed very much afraid of icebergs asked the captain what would happen in case of a collision. The captain replied: "The iceberg would move right along, madam, just as if nothing had happened," and the old lady seemed greatly relieved.—Success.

RIPPLES OF MIRTH

NOT A WHOOP.

It was a man with a camera light showing pictures on a canvas screen on the street, and he had a crowd looking on. The pictures of Taft and Bryan had been shown and cheered by the majority of the crowd, when a man who hadn't yet opened his mouth was asked:

"What's the matter with you, my friend? You don't seem very enthusiastic. Don't you like the candidates?"

"Oh, yes."

"Anything wrong with either one?"

"Not as I know of."

"But you are an American?"

"Certainly, sir."

"And a patriot?"

"Not this time. There's to be no campaign fund on the air. That means no brass bands, no torchlight, no fireworks, no enthusiasm. I don't believe that the men in the whole country will get a free drink out of it."

"But, my dear man—"

"And what do I get for coaxing another man to vote for Bryan or Taft?"

"But, sir—"

"And who's coming around to slip me a five-dollar bill to vote for either candidate?"

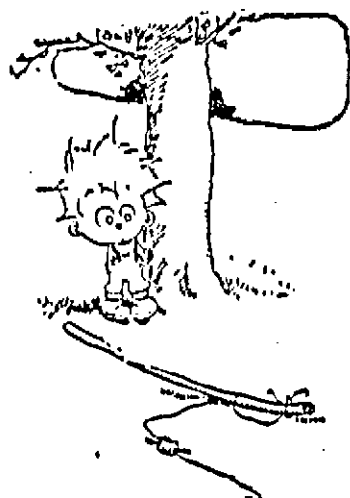

"My dear sir, I'm very much afraid that—"

"And no," continued the man as he turned away. "If the bulwarks of liberty totter to their fall don't blame me. Not a whoop nor a cheer. There's no money in it. It's just straight patriotism, and my landlady wouldn't take a barrel of it for a week's room rent."

JOE KIRIL.

HIE KNEW.

Wise (bachelor)—All babies look alike. Youngster—Until you have one of your own.

"Geef. Here ain't no fun in this!" in vention wid no hooky to play. Shucks!"

NATICA'S P. R.

I asked Natica would she wed, And she replied to me, "I surely will," and then I said: "Oh! joy! Oh! ecstasy!"

Whereon Natica bade me wait Till she had quite got through. "Of course I'll wed, but when I mate It will not be with you."

THE REASON WHY.

He loves to rise at early dawn, When others love to lie, This is the reason for him, Because he is a fly.

GLAD HE WASN'T

The big, prosperous-looking man in the rear seat of the motor car found a man with a shovel beside him, and thinking to say a little, he said:

"Well, my friend, I see you are a workaholic."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"But you are in politics up to your neck, just the same?"

"No, sir, I was, but I've let go."

"Have you? What's the matter? They might have nominated you as one of the candidates."

"Yes, sir, but they didn't, and I'm glad of it."

"But think of the honor."

"Yes, sir, I thought of it, and I thought of other things, too. I'd been elected president, do you know what Joe Sweeney would have wanted of me?"

"An office of some kind?"

"The same, sir. For two weeks he was throwing out hints about it. He'd have wanted to be secretary of state, and if he hadn't got it there'd have been an awful row. He can hardly write his name, and how could I have given him the place?"

"And then there's Jim Thompson. Good man, Jim is, but he never went to school a day, and he just drops off one of these curs like a bag of sand. Jim would have wanted to be secretary of war. He was laughing around one of the generals to get pointers. I couldn't have appointed him, and there'd have been another row."

"Yes, quite likely."

"And then there was Tom Dally, Peter Smith, Jim Boland, and three or four others that I've known and worked with for five years. They'd have wanted office, and you can see how it would have been with me. I talked it over with the old woman, and she says:—

"There, drop it and stick to the shovel."

"And I dropped it and am, sticking, and I'm glad of it."

Big Fire in Kentucky Town.
Lexington, Ky., Sept. 11.—Fire Thursday night at Point Lick, in Garrard county, 12 miles from Lancaster, Ky., caused a loss now estimated at $100,000. Seven stores, one hotel, one bank, the American Tobacco Company's warehouse, and several other buildings were destroyed.

Butte, Mont., Sept. 11.—A dispatch from Belgrade, Mont., states that "Kid" Royal, alleged to be the most notorious horse thief in the northwest, is under arrest in Belgrade, his capture having been effected at Manhattan.

Anticipation Worse Than Realization.
Men are so unanimously eager in the pursuit of things which, far from having any inherent real good, are varnished over with a specious and deceitful gloss, and contain nothing answerable to their appearances. Hence, it proceeds, on the other hand, that in those things which are called evils there is nothing so hard and terrible as the general cry of the world threatens.—Lord Bolingbroke.

"Back Numbers"

The Sharples Tubular Separator bowl has revolutionized cream separators—made "Back Numbers" of all competitive machines.

The Sharples Tubular Separator bowl has a small diameter—all others have large diameters. This small diameter bowl is protected by patents—other manufacturers cannot make or imitate it. It is light—others heavy. Sharples Dairy Tubular bowls have no "contraptions" inside—all others have. They are guaranteed to skim closer than bowls filled with cones, discs, vanes or other inside parts—produce better, sweeter, frothless cream—cause less work—need fewer repairs. They are far ahead of all other separator bowls.

The Sharples Tubular bowl is set differently from all others. It is hung from a single ball bearing—all others are set on top of a double or triple bearing—will wobble and bind—because top heavy. The Sharples Tubular bowl is set right.

The new milk enters the Sharples Tubular bowl at the bottom—all others are fed from the top. The Sharples Tubular bowl does not mix the whole milk with the partly skimmed milk—permits the supply can to set low—saves time—powers your bowl. The Sharples Tubular bowl certainly has made great changes—all to the advantage of the farmer and dairyman. It has come a long way ahead of other separator bowls—much to the disadvantage of the other fellows, because they still make bowls that are "Back Numbers."

OUR CLAIM FOR THE SHARPLES TUBULAR.

First—It skims closer, under all conditions than disc, cone, vane, wing or any "bucket bowl" machines.

Second—It produces a perfect, smooth, frothless cream of any desired density—an impossibility with the disc, cone, vane, wing or any other "bucket bowl" construction.

Third—Cream thus obtained will yield more butter from the same amount of milk, than it is possible to secure by using disc, cone, vane, wing or any other "bucket bowl" machines.

Fourth—It runs at its full capacity with two-thirds, or less, of the power required for any "bucket bowl" machine.

Fifth—It has the most convenient, durable and desirable arrangement of running parts.

Sixth—The low supply can does away with top heaviness, common in other style machines, and can be filled without climbing a chair or step ladder. The milk in the supply can is always in sight.

Seventh—Absolute safety from accidents caused by exposed gears or by top heavy bowls, filled with loose parts, jumping from frames.

Eighth—The three-piece Tubular bowl can be thoroughly washed in one to three minutes.

Ninth—It uses less oil—requires fewer repairs—than any other separator made.

Tenth—We guarantee that it will get enough more cream under like conditions, than any other machine, to pay at least 10 per cent interest on its entire cost.

Write today for our little booklet. It's very interesting and instructive, or better still, call and see this machine when in Janesville.

Hasting and Drinking.
"I went away from home the other day," his wife was saying, "and left my husband to bustle the chicken. It seems he had a bottle with him. Every time he bustled the chicken he took a drink. Riches and Arrogance.

Nothing is more hateful to a poor man than the purse-proud arrogance of the rich—but let the poor man become rich, and he runs at once into the vice against which he has feelingly declaimed. There are strange contradictions in human character.—Richard Cumberland.

Making Glass.

Glass is made iridescent by being exposed, in a red hot condition, to the fumes of salts of tin, bismuth and strontium. It is produced by the stromalia, blue by the baryta and bluish white by the tin. In ancient glass, which is more opaque, iridescence is due to partial decay.

JENNINGS OF DETROIT

"WE SHALL WIN THE PENNANT"

MCALPHER OF ST. LOUIS

"WE ARE A BETTER TEAM THAN DETROIT"

JONES OF CHICAGO

"DON'T COUNT THE SOX OUT OF IT"

The pennant race in the American League is one of the prettiest exhibitions of good baseball fun that has ever followed. Four teams are in the running, for Cleveland must still be counted as a possibility. Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago, in the meantime, are struggling places. Here are the sentiments of the leaders.

Hugh Jennings of the Tigers says: "We have not done as well as we had hoped on the eastern trip, but the eastern clubs showed far better than at other times. There is but one thing for me to say in regard to the pennant race—we are in front and will remain there."

Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland are still in the fight, and we will have a hard battle holding our lead, but I feel confident that we can do it. "We have close to 30 games at home now, and the Detroit fans will see some fighting worthy of Tigers. "We will win, for the boys have the stamina. We are far better fixed for a fight at this time than we were last year, and I don't figure the opposition will be as strong."

McAlphey of St. Louis says: "We have had a bad eastern trip of it, but I am still certain that the pennant will not be decided until we have played the 11 games with Detroit. We will out-heroe the Tigers and beat them. I feel certain we can do it. Our hitting has not been heavy enough to suit me, but the Tigers have also fallen off sadly in their work."

"We are a better home team than Detroit, and will beat them in the west. I do not figure Cleveland and Chicago to run first or second. The fight will be between my team and that run by Jennings. I figure both will about break equally against the other teams in the league, making the real struggle the series of 11 contests."

Jones of Chicago says: "Don't count the Sox out of it. We are going home, where in other years we have always done our best work."

MAKING A NEWSPAPER MAN

"It has been announced that the state university has organized a class in Journalism and will hereafter undertake to turn out newspaper men ready made. Perhaps it will work and perhaps it will not. At any rate

there are a few things which the university might ponder into the heads of would-be Horace Greys.

One of them is the gentle art of spelling.

"The high schools seem to make it a point to ignore the dictionary com-

knowledge of language to construct sentences and put them together intelligently. As a mathematician, he may be deficient in geometry and higher mathematics, but he is an expert on arriving at a rapid conclusion on practical everyday problems.

The aim and principal object of the modern high school is to prepare boys and girls for the university, and the course of study anticipates that every graduate will be found in some higher institution of learning. An ideal proposition, but as impractical as the mischievous, because comparatively few graduates, continue in school, and a much larger number of high school scholars graduate from the grades.

The university attempts to help all classes and the boy or girl who is fortunate enough to enjoy its advantages, may choose almost any course of study desired.

The newspaper department has recently been added to the course, and ambitious writers will be encouraged to enter. The instructors at the head of this department will soon discover two things: first, a deficiency along many lines for which the high school is responsible, and second, the fact that reporters and writers are not made to order.

"The nose for news" is an inherited impediment, and any amount of training, where the highmark is lacking is a useless waste of energy.

This of course is only one department of newspaper work, but it is the one department where the successful writer starts, and it means that as much care should be exercised in selecting talent of this kind for development, as is used in selecting girls who will succeed as trained nurses, from a promiscuous class.

The work of the newspaper school will be interesting to watch.

The state of Iowa has gone out of the way to stir up trouble, and a deadlock in the legislature is the result. The state has no particular need of a senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Allison, until congress convenes in December, and there will be ample time to elect one after the November election. If the republican party suffers defeat it will be charged to the ambition of a reform governor.

Bryan's new banking scheme is as wild and visionary as his 50-cent dollar, and if ever carried out the nation will be cursed with a string of wildcat banks from one end of the country to the other. The new state of Oklahoma and its financial governor, Haskell, will bear watching.

Uncle Joe Canyon is a lively campaigner in spite of his years, and as fearless on the stump as in the house over which he has so long presided. He will be re-elected in spite of labor and Methodist opposition, and the nation will continue to enjoy the benefits of his experience and statesmanship.

The Iowa deadlock is broken, and Governor Cummins has wisely decided to retire from the field until after the state and national election. This means temporary harmony and the success of the republican ticket.

Thirty-seven million bunches of bananas valued at $6,000,000 were imported from South American countries last year, Porto Rico being well in the lead. Tropical fruit is cheaper than domestic, and is no longer a luxury.

TOWN ADVERTISING.

Striking Way in Which a Massachusetts Town Uses a Huge Chair.

Not only does it pay to advertise in every line of business, but self advertisement is a good proposition for towns.

Gardner, Mass., a busy town on the top of the highest land in Worcester county, have only the peak of Mount Wachusett, is the biggest chairmaking community in the world and is known popularly as "Chairtown."

It believes in saying a good word for itself and accordingly at the railroad station advertises itself in characteristic fashion by having set up "the biggest chair in the world," which stands on a concrete base in the middle of the long lawn alongside the Boston and Maine station platform. The chair weighs 200 pounds and is five and a half feet square at the base and twelve feet high. To make this bit of furniture there were used 600 feet of lumber.

As a bit of town advertising as well as an indication of what's going on in the town this chair is a winner, and every one passing through Gardner is sure to see it and to remember it.

Parisian Paper Cans.

The street department of Paris has a bad reputation which it does not deserve. Foreign visitors in particular complain that the streets of the capital are not kept in a state of neatness worthy of the City of Light. The fact that the pavements of Paris are littered with scraps of paper to an extent unknown in London or Berlin is due, however, to the permission given by the authorities of Paris to distribute advertising matter in the streets. An attempt has been made to remedy this state of affairs by placing on the boulevard receptacles for newspapers, newspapers and other refuse, says the Selenite American. The receptacles, which are made of iron, are attached to the lamp posts and contain inner vessels of sheet iron which are periodically removed and emptied. The new receptacles are ornamental in appearance, and they attract the attention of the public, which already condescends to use them occasionally and will probably do so more frequently after it has become accustomed to them.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

DON'TS—FOUR OF THEM.

Don't get out of your bed in the morning and go immediately to the window and "breathe deeply twenty times" or ten times. Don't stand at all in front of the window just then. Why?

Because while you have been sleeping your blood has withdrawn itself from the skin surfaces and your nerve forces have concentrated themselves at inside centers. If you expose yourself under these conditions, unless you are very strong and robust, you are likely to catch your "death of cold."

Don't take a cold bath the first thing in the morning after you arise. Why?

For like reasons—your blood is not in the surface. It has not been needed there. The bedclothes have kept the skin warm. And a cold plunge at this time, unless you are quite strong, will do you more harm than good. If you take a cold bath immediately after brisk physical exercise, which brings the blood to the outside, or if you take a cold bath following a hot bath, which produces the same effect, you may get some benefit.

Don't "drink a glass of cold water as soon as you get out of bed." If you drink anything before breakfast, take a little sip or two of hot water. Why?

Because the stomach is not ready to do business before breakfast. The blood is withdrawn. If you douche it with cold water at such a time, you chill that organ and derange its functions; also, if you pour a lot of hot water into it, you wash out the gastric juices and impede digestion.

Don't take violent exercise before breakfast or immediately following.

Why? Because your vital forces before breakfast are low and need recuperating from within. After breakfast the processes of digestion should not be interfered with until the stomach gets a chance to begin operations.

But you say—These don't contravene popular beliefs in some respects and the advice of "health magazines" in others. That may be true, but popular opinions may be wrong, and health magazines are not infallible.

We have gathered these truths from a hygienist who has given these matters a lifetime study. In his field he is a good authority.

Resolves—The reasons for these views are given, and they correspond with reason and common sense.

A Bit of Information About Our Marvelous Wash Goods Stock

We say "marvelous," as that is the impression most people get after seeing our stock and making comparisons with the ordinary stock about town.

We have to buy early. Orders were placed for these wash fabrics months ago, when manufacturers were showing hundreds of styles that could not be purchased now at any price. It is an advantage we have over the average merchant who buys a few pieces at a time when he needs them and has to take what he can get. It means a great deal to have such an enormous assortment to select from. The Big Store is fully equipped to supply your fall needs.

SERPENTINE CREPES 18c

These are a new fabric of cotton crepe, 32 inches wide, for house robes, kimono, saques, etc. The large floral figures are pretty and the Oriental stripes are very taking also. Both are popular for this fall.

NEIGHBORS ON RIVER RESORT TO INJUNCTIONS

ELECTRIC CO. INTERFERES WITH BLODGETT MILLING CO. AND LATTER STRIKES BACK

By Securing Injunction Restraining Geo. G. Sutherland from Building Cement Foundations for Pile under His Building.

There is a merry war along the river. An injunction from a local court commissioner restraining George G. Sutherland from putting in cement foundations for piles in the rear of his building over Rock River has been obtained by the Blodgett Milling company. The mill company alleges that the river is so narrow and shallow at the point where the piles were to be placed that they would retard the flow and thus reduce the fall of water, thus diminishing the power at the mill.

A week or so ago the city council sent a suit on the river bank encroachments, fixing a line beyond which abutting property-owners could not build. Alleging that it was building beyond this limit and interfering with its water power, the Janesville Electric company through its attorney, George G. Sutherland, recently obtained an injunction against the Blodgett Milling company restraining the latter from driving piles to support the new office building. This injunction order, also granted by a local court commissioner, was served upon the mill company on the 5th of September.

The question of the water rights will probably be thrown out before the courts soon. No great principles are at stake, but the public will be interested just the same and may take a hand in the squabble.

They also won the sweepstakes, or championship, for the best stallion of any age, on "Fleather Blossom"—the same animal that won at the Iowa state fair recently. FISH CAR ARRIVED HERE THIS MORNING

The "Dagger" with Twelve Thousand Black Bass to Stock the Rock River, at St. Paul Depot.

This morning the Fish Commission car which has been expected here to stock Rock River with black bass arrived over the St. Paul road. In the eleven tanks which the car contains were about twelve thousand fish obtained by selling the sloughs along the Mississippi. The state has now working, solving these sloughs, which are formed in the spring by the overflow of the river, most of the time. A common minnow net is used and then the fish are carried in minnow buckets to the river, where they are placed in crates and anchored in the current in order to keep them alive. As they are needed they are removed from the crates and carried in the fish car to the net where streams are to be stocked. They are counted as they are removed from the sloughs. Of the fry brought here this morning about one hundred and fifty are cut fish and there are a few perch. They will be planted, part above the dam and some in the creek at Spring Brook near Dub's brewery. The size of the fish range from three to six or eight inches.

The Latest Precious Stone.

A new gem mineral—benitoite—has been added to the list of known precious stones. This is a titanite—silicate of barium, having a blue color and a high refractive index. It is found in San Benito county, California.

Pooling with Idioms.

A foreigner, meeting an American friend, said to him, "How are you?" The latter replied, "Out of sight." The man considered this very clever, and decided to use the expression on the next occasion. Shortly after he was met by a friend, who asked, "How are you?" With visible pride he answered, "You don't see me."

Let Us Overcome Afflictions.

Let us set all our past and present afflictions at once before our eyes. Let us resolve to overcome them, instead of flying from them, or wearing out the sense of them by long and ignominious patience.—Lord Bellinghame.

Stamping Out Typhoid Fever.

It may not be generally known here that by inoculation the English troops in India have been largely prevented from contracting typhoid fever during the past two years, and thus this disease, which had long been a terror to medical men in the tropics among masses of soldiers, is no longer dreaded.—Dr. M. Allen Starr, in Harper's Magazine.

Mottos as Injunctions.

A motto is very much the fashion these days. If you see an office without some sort of injunction on the walls you may be satisfied that the occupant is either behind his generation or ahead of it.

To Live One's Own Life.

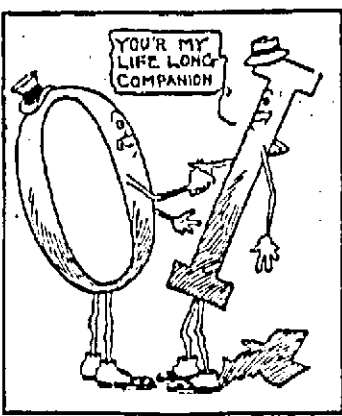

To live one's own life is a matter of such poignant and absorbing interest that it instantly creates an individual atmosphere which obscures the larger known phenomena of nature.—Mary Stewart Cutting, in "The Wayfarers."

Mama—Yes, Earle, they say that Argus had a hundred eyes. Earle—A hundred eyes? What? But couldn't he enjoy a baseball game, though?

BURN PROOF.

Her Father—No you want to marry my daughter, ah? Do you really love her? Her Mother—She graduated from cooking school a few weeks ago, didn't she? Her Father—Oh, yes. Her Mother—And yet I want to marry her. I guess that's proof enough.

GUARANTY LAW UPHOLD.
Oklahoma Bank Deaf in Supreme Court of That State.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 11.—In a unanimous opinion the supreme court Thursday upheld the validity of the depositors' guaranty law, denying the injunction prayed by the Noble State bank to restrain the state from levying a one per cent. assessment upon the deposits of the bank. It was contended by the plaintiff bank that the law is unconstitutional in that it levies on and takes private property without consideration. On this point Judge Hinton in the Logan county district court overruled the bank and denied an injunction, the case then being appealed to the supreme court.

RECEIVER FOR A. BOOTH & CO.
Trouble of Big Concern Caused by Too Great Expansion.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—A. Booth & Co., the $12,000,000 fish, game and seafood corporation, with branches extending from coast to coast, passed into the hands of a receiver late Thursday afternoon.

On petition of Alfred E. Booth and the Linen Thread Company of New York, Judge S. H. Bethen in the United States circuit court named William J. Chalmers, president of the Commercial National Safe Deposit Company, who took charge of the company's general office.

The general assets are placed at $8,000,000, exclusive of the company's good will, valued at $4,000,000, and the liabilities, according to the bill, approximate $5,500,000. Mr. Chalmers gave bond for $50,000.

HARRIMAN'S MEXICAN RAILWAY

Mexico City, Sept. 11.—At first appearance the $10,000,000 subsidy recently granted to the Harriman and his associates to build the thousand miles of railway connecting the Seneca line with the Mexican Central, along the west coast of Mexico, seems to be out of proportion with the advantage gained by Mexico. When, however, the cost of construction is considered, combined with the innumerable advantages to Mexico itself of this railway, dollars and cents sink into the background. The western states with their rich mineral products and fertile soil, only awaiting the hand and capital of a Harriman to develop them, will soon make up the $10,000,000 for Mexico. This strip of coast is considered the richest and most undeveloped of all this wealthy country.

Since the accession of President Diaz to the presidency, in 1877, one of his greatest factors in advancing Mexico has been his encouragement of outside capital and ready subsidy for the railroads. When he entered the presidency Mexico had but one railway. Since then so rapid has been the advance that nearly all of the larger cities are connected, and this largely by American capital.

The American investments in Mexico now amount to over $700,000,000. The industrial and commercial prosperity of Mexico has been greatly promoted by American enterprise and

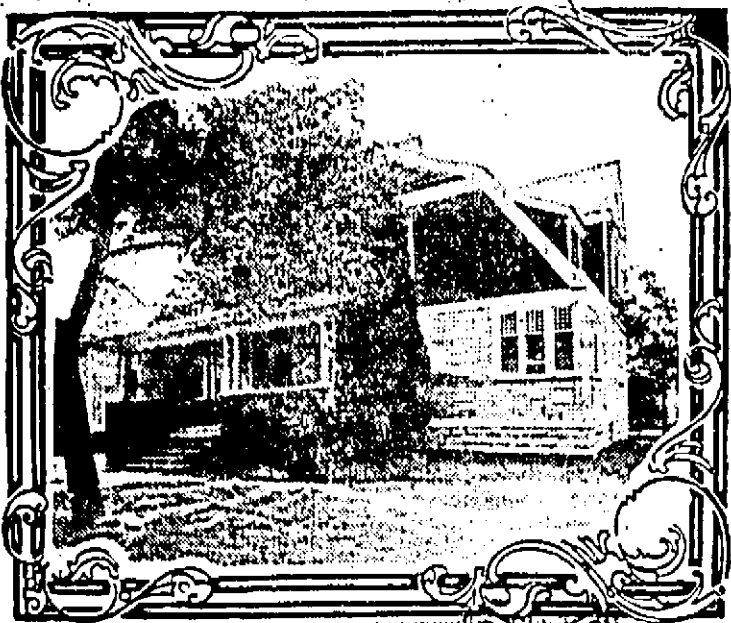

A GREAT ADVANTAGE TO MEXICO

Americans are sharing largely in this result. The foreign trade of the republic already exceeds $240,000,000 per annum and of this two-thirds, both of exports and imports, are exchanged with the United States.

With the Harriman line running through the richest district American interests will be greatly benefited. It is expected that the rich ricefields and alfalfa lands will be developed and the products brought into the United States over this line.

There is probably no other thousand-mile stretch in the entire world more advantageous for a railroad line, and it was this wizard of railroads who discovered this and who will not only have a lucrative return of his investment eventually, but the nation receives enough to cover practically all his initial expense.

In addition to the $10,000,000 already granted Harriman, it is understood that an additional subsidy will be granted covering the short though expensive run between Tepic and Orizaba, where connection will be made with the Mexican Central near Guadalajara. It is generally understood this is only the beginning of a railway system proposed by the Harriman forces, and that it eventually will continue down the coast and form a part of the great pan-American railway, which is to eventually connect the two continents of North and South America.

LITTLE JOURNEYS TO THE SUMMER HOMES OF FAMOUS MEN.

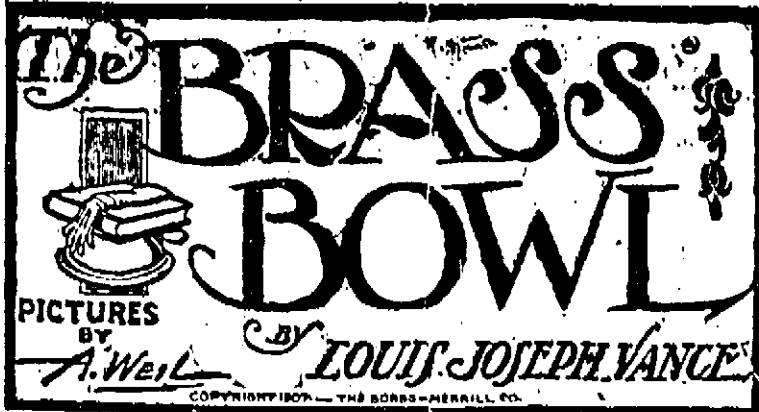

Topoka, Kan.—Characteristic of the man and his simple tastes is the comparatively humble home in which Rev. Dr. Charles M. Sheldon pastor of Central Congregational church, Topoka, author of "In His Steps" and other books, and a temperance advocate of international reputation, lives. Five thousand dollars would cover the physical value of this home, the only one which Dr. Sheldon owns. Dr. Sheldon doesn't believe in armies and navies, and it necessarily follows that such man would be much devoted to his home life. He has a wife and one young son. Mrs. Sheldon has been a young woman for some time. Dr. Sheldon's church reaches a large number of Washington college students, and the pastor's residence is in the Washington college district, where he is continually in touch with the young men and young women students. Not far distant is "Tennessee town," a section of the city inhabited by negroes during the exodus to Kansas many years ago. Among these Dr. Sheldon labors, and in behalf of them he has succeeded in accomplishing great results.

Although Dr. Sheldon has been sought by other larger churches of the country, he believes that his surroundings here are the most favorable, and because of the family-like character of his church, he never has seen fit to give up the pastorate here.

Hope's Cruise.—"Some of us ought to be appointed to the police force," remarked the woman characterized by firmness of chin. "And wear uniforms? How lovely!" added a younger sister. "But like as not the hotel director would assign us to the plain clothes squad," suggested a third. In view of this possibility enthusiasm ceased.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"A confusion would aid us materially," dryly. "The case is perplexing. You round up a burglar sought by the police of two continents, and, happily, permit his escape. Why?"

"I would rather not be pressed," said Maitland, with evident candor; "but, since you say it is imperative, that you must know—"

"So," said Maitland, turning to face the man squarely, "You are from Police Headquarters?"

clined his head affirmatively. "Why to tell the truth, I was a bit under the weather last night; out with a party of friends, you know. Dare say we all had a bit more than we could carry. The capture was purely accidental; we had other plans for the night and—well," laughing shortly, "I didn't give the matter too much thought, beyond believing that Higgins would hold the man tight."

"I see. It is unfortunate, but . . . you motored back to town."

It was not a question, but Maitland so considered it.

"We did," he admitted.

"And came here directly?"

"I did."

"Mr. Maitland, why not be frank with me? My sole object is to capture a notorious burglar. I have no desire to meddle with your private affairs, but . . . you may trust in my discretion. Who was the young lady?"

"To conceal her identity," said Maitland, undisturbed, "is precisely why I have been lying to you."

"You refuse to tell information?"

"Absolutely. I have no choice in the matter. You must see that."

Snath shook his head, baffled, infinitely perturbed, to Maitland's hidden delight.

"Of course," said he, "the policeman at the ferry recognized me?"

"You are well known to him," admitted Snath. "But that is a side issue. What puzzles me is why you let Anstey escape. It is inconceivable."

"From a police point of view,"

"From any point of view," said Snath, obstinately. "The man breaks into your house, steals your jewels—"

"This is getting tiresome," Maitland interrupted, curtly. "Is it possible that you suspect me of conniving at the theft of my own property?"

Snath's eyes were keen upon him. "Stranger things have been known. And yet—the motive is lacking. You are not financially embarrassed—so far as we can determine, at least."

Maitland politely interpreted his finger between his own and the detective's intent regard. "You have ten minutes more, I'm sorry to say," he said, glancing at the clock.

"And there is another point, more significant yet."

"Ah?"

"Yes," Snath bent forward, elbows on knees, but and came swinging, eyes implacable, hard, relentless. "Anstey," he said, slowly, "left a tolerably complete burglar's kit in your library."

"Well—he's a burglar, isn't he?"

"Not that kind," Snath shook his head.

"But his departure was somewhat hurried. I can conceive that he might abandon his kit—"

"But it was not his."

"Not Anstey's?"

"Anstey does not depend on such antiquated methods, Mr. Maitland; save that in extreme instances, with a particularly stubborn safe, he employs a high explosive that, so far as we can find out, is practically noiseless. Its nature is a mystery . . ."

But such old-fashioned strong-boxes as yours at Greenfield he opens by ear, so to speak—listens to the combination. He was once an expert, reputedly employed by a prominent firm of safe manufacturers, in whose service he gained the skill that has made him—what he is."

"But," Maitland cast about at random, feeling himself cornered—"may he not have had accomplices?"

"His no such fool. Unless he has gone mad, he worked alone. I presume you discovered no accomplices?"

"The devil, no!"

Snath smiled mysteriously, then fell thoughtful, pondering.

"You are an original," he said, at length. "I can not understand why you refuse me all information, when I consider that the jewels were yours—"

"Are mine," Maitland corrected.

"No longer."

"I beg your pardon; I have them."

Snath shook his head, smiling incredulously. Maitland flushed with annoyance and resentment, then on impulse rose and strode into the adjoining bedroom, returning with a small canvas bag.

"You shall see for yourself," he said, depositing the bag on the desk and fumbling with the drawers. "If you will be kind enough to step over here—"

Mr. Snath, still unconvinced, hesitated, then, assented, halting a brief distance from Maitland and toying abstractedly with his cane while the young man plucked at the drawstring.

"Deuced tight knot, this," commented Maitland, annoyed.

"No matter. Don't trouble, please. I'm quite satisfied, believe me."

"Oh, you are!"

Maitland turned; and in the act of turning, the loaded head of the cane landed with crushing force upon his temple.

For an instant he stood awaying, eyes closed, face robbed of every vestige of color, deep lines of agony graven in his forehead and about his mouth; then fell like a lifeless thing, limp and invertebrate.

The solid-sant Mr. Snath caught him and let him gently and without sound to the floor.

"Poor fool!" he commented, kneeling to make a hasty examination.

"I hope I haven't done for him. . . . It would be the first time. . . ."

Had precedent! . . . Not his all right—conscience within an hour.

"Too soon!" he added, standing and looking down. "Well, turn about's fair play."

He swung on his heel and entered the hallway, pausing at the door long enough to shoot the bolt; then passed, hastily through the other chambers, searching, to judge by his manner.

In the end a closed door attracted him; he jerked it open, with an exclamation of relief. It gave upon a large bare room, used by Maitland as a trunk closet. Here were stout leather straps and cords in ample measure.

"Mr. Snath" selected one from them quickly but with care, choosing the strongest.

In two more minutes, Maitland, trussed, gagged, still unconscious, and breathing heavily, occupied a divan in his smoking-room, while his assailant, in the bedroom, ears keen to catch the least sound from without, was rapidly and cheerfully arraying himself in the Maitland gray-striped flannels and accessories—even to the gray socks which had been specified.

"The less chances one takes, the better," soliloquized "Mr. Snath."

He stood erect, in another man's shoes, squaring back his shoulders, discarding the disgusting stoop, and confronted his image in a pier-glass.

"Good enough Maitland," he commented, with a little satisfied nod to his counterfeit presentment. "But we'll make it better still."

A single quick jerk denuded his upper lip; he stowed the mustache carefully away in his breast pocket. The moistened corner of a towel made quick work of the crew's foot about his eyes, and, simultaneously, robbed him of a dozen apparent years. A pair of yellow chamol gloves, placed conveniently on a dressing table, covered hands that he could make resemble Maitland's. And it was Daniel Maittaking up his hat and the murderous cane as he went. Here he gathered to gether all the articles of clothing that he had discarded, conveying the mass to the trunkroom, where an empty and unlocked kit-bag received it all.

"That, I think, is about all."

He was very methodical, this criminal, this Anstey. Nothing essential escaped him. He rejoiced in the minutiae of detail that went to cover up his tracks so thoroughly that his campaigns were as remarkable for the clues he did leave with malicious design, as for those that he didn't.

One final thing held his attention: A bowl of hammered brass, inverted beneath a ponderous book, upon the desk. Why? In a twinkling he had removed both and was studying the impression of a woman's hand in the dust, and nodding over it.

"That girl," deduced Anstey. "Nonsense, poor little fool—or she wouldn't have wasted time searching here for the jewels. Good looking, though—" from what little he—"

with a glance at Maitland—"gave me a chance to see of her. Seems to have snared him, all right, if she did miss the haul. . . ."

Little idiot! What right has a woman in this business, anyway? Well, here's one thing that will never land me in the pen."

As, with nice care, he replaced both bowl and book, a door slammed below stairs took him to the hall in an instant. Maitland's Panama was hanging on the hatrack, Maitland's collection of walking sticks, bristled in a stand beneath it. Anstey appropriated the former and chose one of the latter: "Fair exchange," he considered, with a hunchy laugh. "After all, he loses nothing . . . but the jewels."

He was out and at the foot of the stairs just as O'Hagan reached the ground floor from the basement.

"Ah, O'Hagan!" The assumption of Maitland's ironic drawl was impeccable. O'Hagan no more questioned it than he questioned his own sanity.

"Here, send this wire at once, please; and," pressing a coin into the ready palm, "keep the change. I was hurried and didn't bother to call you. And, I say, O'Hagan!" from the outer door: "Yes?"

"If that fellow Snath ever calls again, I'm not at home."

"Very good, sir."

Anstey permitted himself the slightest of smiles, pausing on the stoop to draw on the chamol gloves. As he did so his eye flickered disinterestedly over the personality of a man standing on the opposite walk and staring at the apartment house. He was a short man, of stoutish habit, sloppily dressed, with a derby pulled down over one eye, clear butt protruding arrogantly from beneath a heavy black mustache, beefy cheeks, and thick-soled boots fully polished.

At sight of him the thief was conscious of an inward tremor, followed by a thrill of excitement like a wave of heat sweeping through his being. Instantaneously his eyes flashed; then were dulled, imperturbable, listless, half-marked the prey of ennui, he waited, undecided, upon the stoop, while the watcher opposite, catching sight of him, abruptly abandoned his slouch and hastened across the street.

"Excuse me," he began in a loud tone, while yet a dozen feet away, "but ain't this Mr. Maitland?"

Anstey lifted his brows and shoulders at one and the same time and bowed slightly.

"Well, my good man?"

"I'm a detective from headquarters, Mr. Maitland. We got a 'phone from Greenfield, Long Island, this morning—from the local police. Your butler—"

"Ah! I see; about this man Anstey? You don't mean to tell me—what? I—"

Anstey was fumbling in his fob-pocket and inwardly cursing himself for having been such an ass as to overlook Maitland's timepiece. "Deuced awkward!" he muttered in genuine annoyance. "I've mislaid my watch."

"It's most one o'clock, Mr. Maitland."

Flattered, the man from headquarters dropped into step by the burglar's side.

Forty Years Ago
Jamesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 11, 1868.—Good Shooting.—Mr. Ira Blumhain, of Koshkonong, went out yesterday morning for a day's shooting and before sundown succeeded in bagging eight-four ducks.
A Run Against Time.—The directors of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad propose to indulge themselves in a fast ride over a portion of their new road between Chicago and Green Bay, leaving the former place tomorrow forenoon with the intention of going over the 212 miles in five hours, including stoppages. The train is to consist of a locomotive, baggage car and the new palmer car recently put on the road for the use of the directors. Three different locomotives are to be used for the trip, changing at this place and at Oshkosh, and it is to be expected that everything will stand aside for the train. They are to reach Jamesville at twelve o'clock P. M., halting only long enough to detach their engine and couple on the "Marathon," which draws the train to Oshkosh.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES.

ANOTHER PICTURE OF STAR IN "A WOMAN OF THE WEST"
One of the great charms of Father Vaughan's play "A Woman of the West" is the simple natural touches which reveal his true understanding of the Irish character. Proverbial as is the Irish regard for the church, yet

We ought to charge more than we do. But we don't.

men be given an opportunity to attend mass. None but a man thoroughly conversant with Irish character, in fact an Irishman, would have done it so effectively and at the same time so delicately.
Not only has the playwright introduced strong dramatic situations in the piece but he has also endeavored it with some pointed epigrams. While the play is filled with telling lines it is in the comedy scene in the last act that Nance (Annie Mack Borden) is given opportunity to drive home some very caustic remarks about society, such as: "God deliver me! It's the scum that floats on the top of the nation."
Matinee and evening performances will be given at the Myers theatre Saturday and the play will again be presented next Monday evening.
DAVIS CHARGED WITH MURDER.
County Attorney Formally Accuses Him in the Rustin Case.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 11.—Late Thursday afternoon County Attorney English filed a complaint against Charles E. Davis, charging him with murder in the first degree in connection with the shooting of Dr. Frederick Rustin the morning of September 2.
An important development was brought to the attention of the county attorney when Dr. J. P. Lord, the physician called by Mrs. Rustin to attend her husband immediately following the shooting, told the police that on his way to the Rustin home the morning of the shooting he met a man answering the description of Davis two blocks from where Dr. Rustin was shot and coming from the direction of the dying physician's home. This feature was not brought out at the inquest, although Dr. Lord was one of the witnesses. Chief Donahue declared it was the most significant bit of evidence thus far secured.

LUMBER
The seasoning of lumber is really one of the most particular things about it. Good timber may be spoiled in the process and make very poor lumber. Thrilling Moment in Popular Fiction.
The bomb went off with a dull and deafening roar, and Second-Story Bill, the Pious Dangler, gazed into the black recesses of the vault.
"At last!" he muttered, hoarsely, "my prayers are answered. Fortune is mine."
He went in, but in a moment he emerged, his face white with the rage of disappointment.
"Curse them!" he cried in his wrath. "The recollectors have been here before me." But he was wrong. The vault had contained the firm's collateral for speculators' loans, and the recent fall in the market had completely wiped out the margins.—Success Magazine.
Ethergram.
Language grows apace with the victories of applied science. Consider for a moment how many words in the ordinary work-a-day vocabulary were unknown a quarter of a century ago and are the natural product of discovery and invention. With the perfection of wireless transmission of intelligence there obviously came need of a word designating a message conveyed by the new method. "Ethergram" has been suggested and, in fact, is being used in Great Britain. If not, why not?
